EGYPT

BETWEEN SUBMERGED ARCHAEOLOGY, DESERTS BORDERING THE SEA AND LEGENDARY WATERS

Sailing in Egypt is an experience that combines the visual impact of the desert with the symbolic depths of the waters that bathe the history of ancient civilizations. The Red Sea and the Egyptian Mediterranean harbor an extraordinary variety of marine environments, where coral reefs coexist with shipwrecks from different eras and coastal villages that tell of ancient trade. From Marsa Alam to El Gouna, passing through remote bays and forgotten harbors, Egypt offers routes that blend natural wonder with millennia-old cultural stratification.

Far from the tourist crowds centered on the large cities and pyramids of the interior, Egypt from the sea reveals itself as authentic and surprising. You sail among uninhabited islands, coral reefs, and deserts plunging into turquoise waters, but also among ancient Mediterranean ports like Alexandria, where myth meets modernity. By catamaran, sailboat, or motoryacht, you can access protected bays and marine reserves where snorkeling and diving offer windows onto unique underwater worlds.

Here, a sea voyage is also contemplation and discovery, a dimension that reawakens a sense of time and history. Every dive, every sunset over the sea is a return to an origin. And the wind that blows from the dunes to the sea tells legends still alive in the gestures of coastal communities, in the scent of spices, and in the infinite silence of the desert embracing the water.

The itinerary includes meetings with Bedouin guides who introduce us to the desert culture and local cuisine based on dates, bread, and spiced tea. We then set sail for the Qulaan Islands, a paradise of white sand and mangroves, habitat of rare birds, and turquoise waters. Continuing toward Abu Qir, we'll visit submerged coastal archaeological sites, including the remains of the ancient city of Canopus, now visible by snorkeling with a guide. The route continues toward Marsa Matruh, passing through small bays and Berber villages that have preserved the rhythms of times gone by.
